"There are stories in everything. I've got some of my best yarns from park benches, lampposts, and newspaper stands."

— William S. Porter

While few today may recognize the name of American writer William Sydney Porter (1862-1910), many will know the stories published under his pen name "O. Henry". These 400-some short stories are identified by their wordplay and wit, characterization and cleverness — the latter most notably in the device whose mastery he shares with Roald Dahl: the surprise ending. Literary critics credit him with shaping the short story into an art form.

O. Henry remains best known for his Christmas favorite, "The Gift of the Magi", about a young couple who, though lacking money, remain rich. The story has been copied, re-told, and parodied countless times, so a musical setting is not out of line, especially since William Porter happened to be a fine musician, playing the guitar and mandolin, and, as a member of the "Hill City Quartet", singing at gatherings and serenading the young women in town.

The Susquehanna Symphony has kindly performed my winter music in the past (including my narration work "The Christmas Mirror"), so when Sheldon Bair asked if I have any other narration pieces for the Christmas season, I decided to go ahead with a project I'd contemplated and compose a musical accompaniment for O. Henry's classic.

Music is storytelling, and I consider myself a short story writer, musically speaking, so O. Henry would seem a fine choice as a collaborator. Still, setting a finely crafted story to music remains a delicate business: the music should gently underline the story and support it emotionally where that would be helpful — and without seeking attention for itself, and get out of the way the rest of the time (much like a good film score). This particular score is also designed to compliment the strengths of the Susquehanna Symphony. I hope I've succeeded in adding a little more pleasure to a very pleasurable story.

Della finished her cry and attended to her cheeks with the powder rag. She stood by the window and looked out dully at a gray cat walking a gray fence in a gray backyard. Tomorrow would be Christmas Day, and she had only $1.87 with which to buy Jim a present. She had been saving every penny she could for months, with this result. Twenty dollars a week doesn't go far. Expenses had been greater than she had calculated. They always are. Only $1.87 to buy a present for Jim. Her Jim. Many a happy hour she had spent planning for something nice for him — something fine and rare and sterling — something just a little bit near to being worthy of the honor of being owned by Jim.

There was a pier-glass between the windows of the room. Perhaps you have seen a pier-glass in an $8 flat.
